Contents

Today you'll hear about our unique Curriculum through the voices of some of our Practitioners and Parents as we discuss "what learning means for us at Forest School For Life?"

At Forest School For Life, we use a slow Pedagogy.

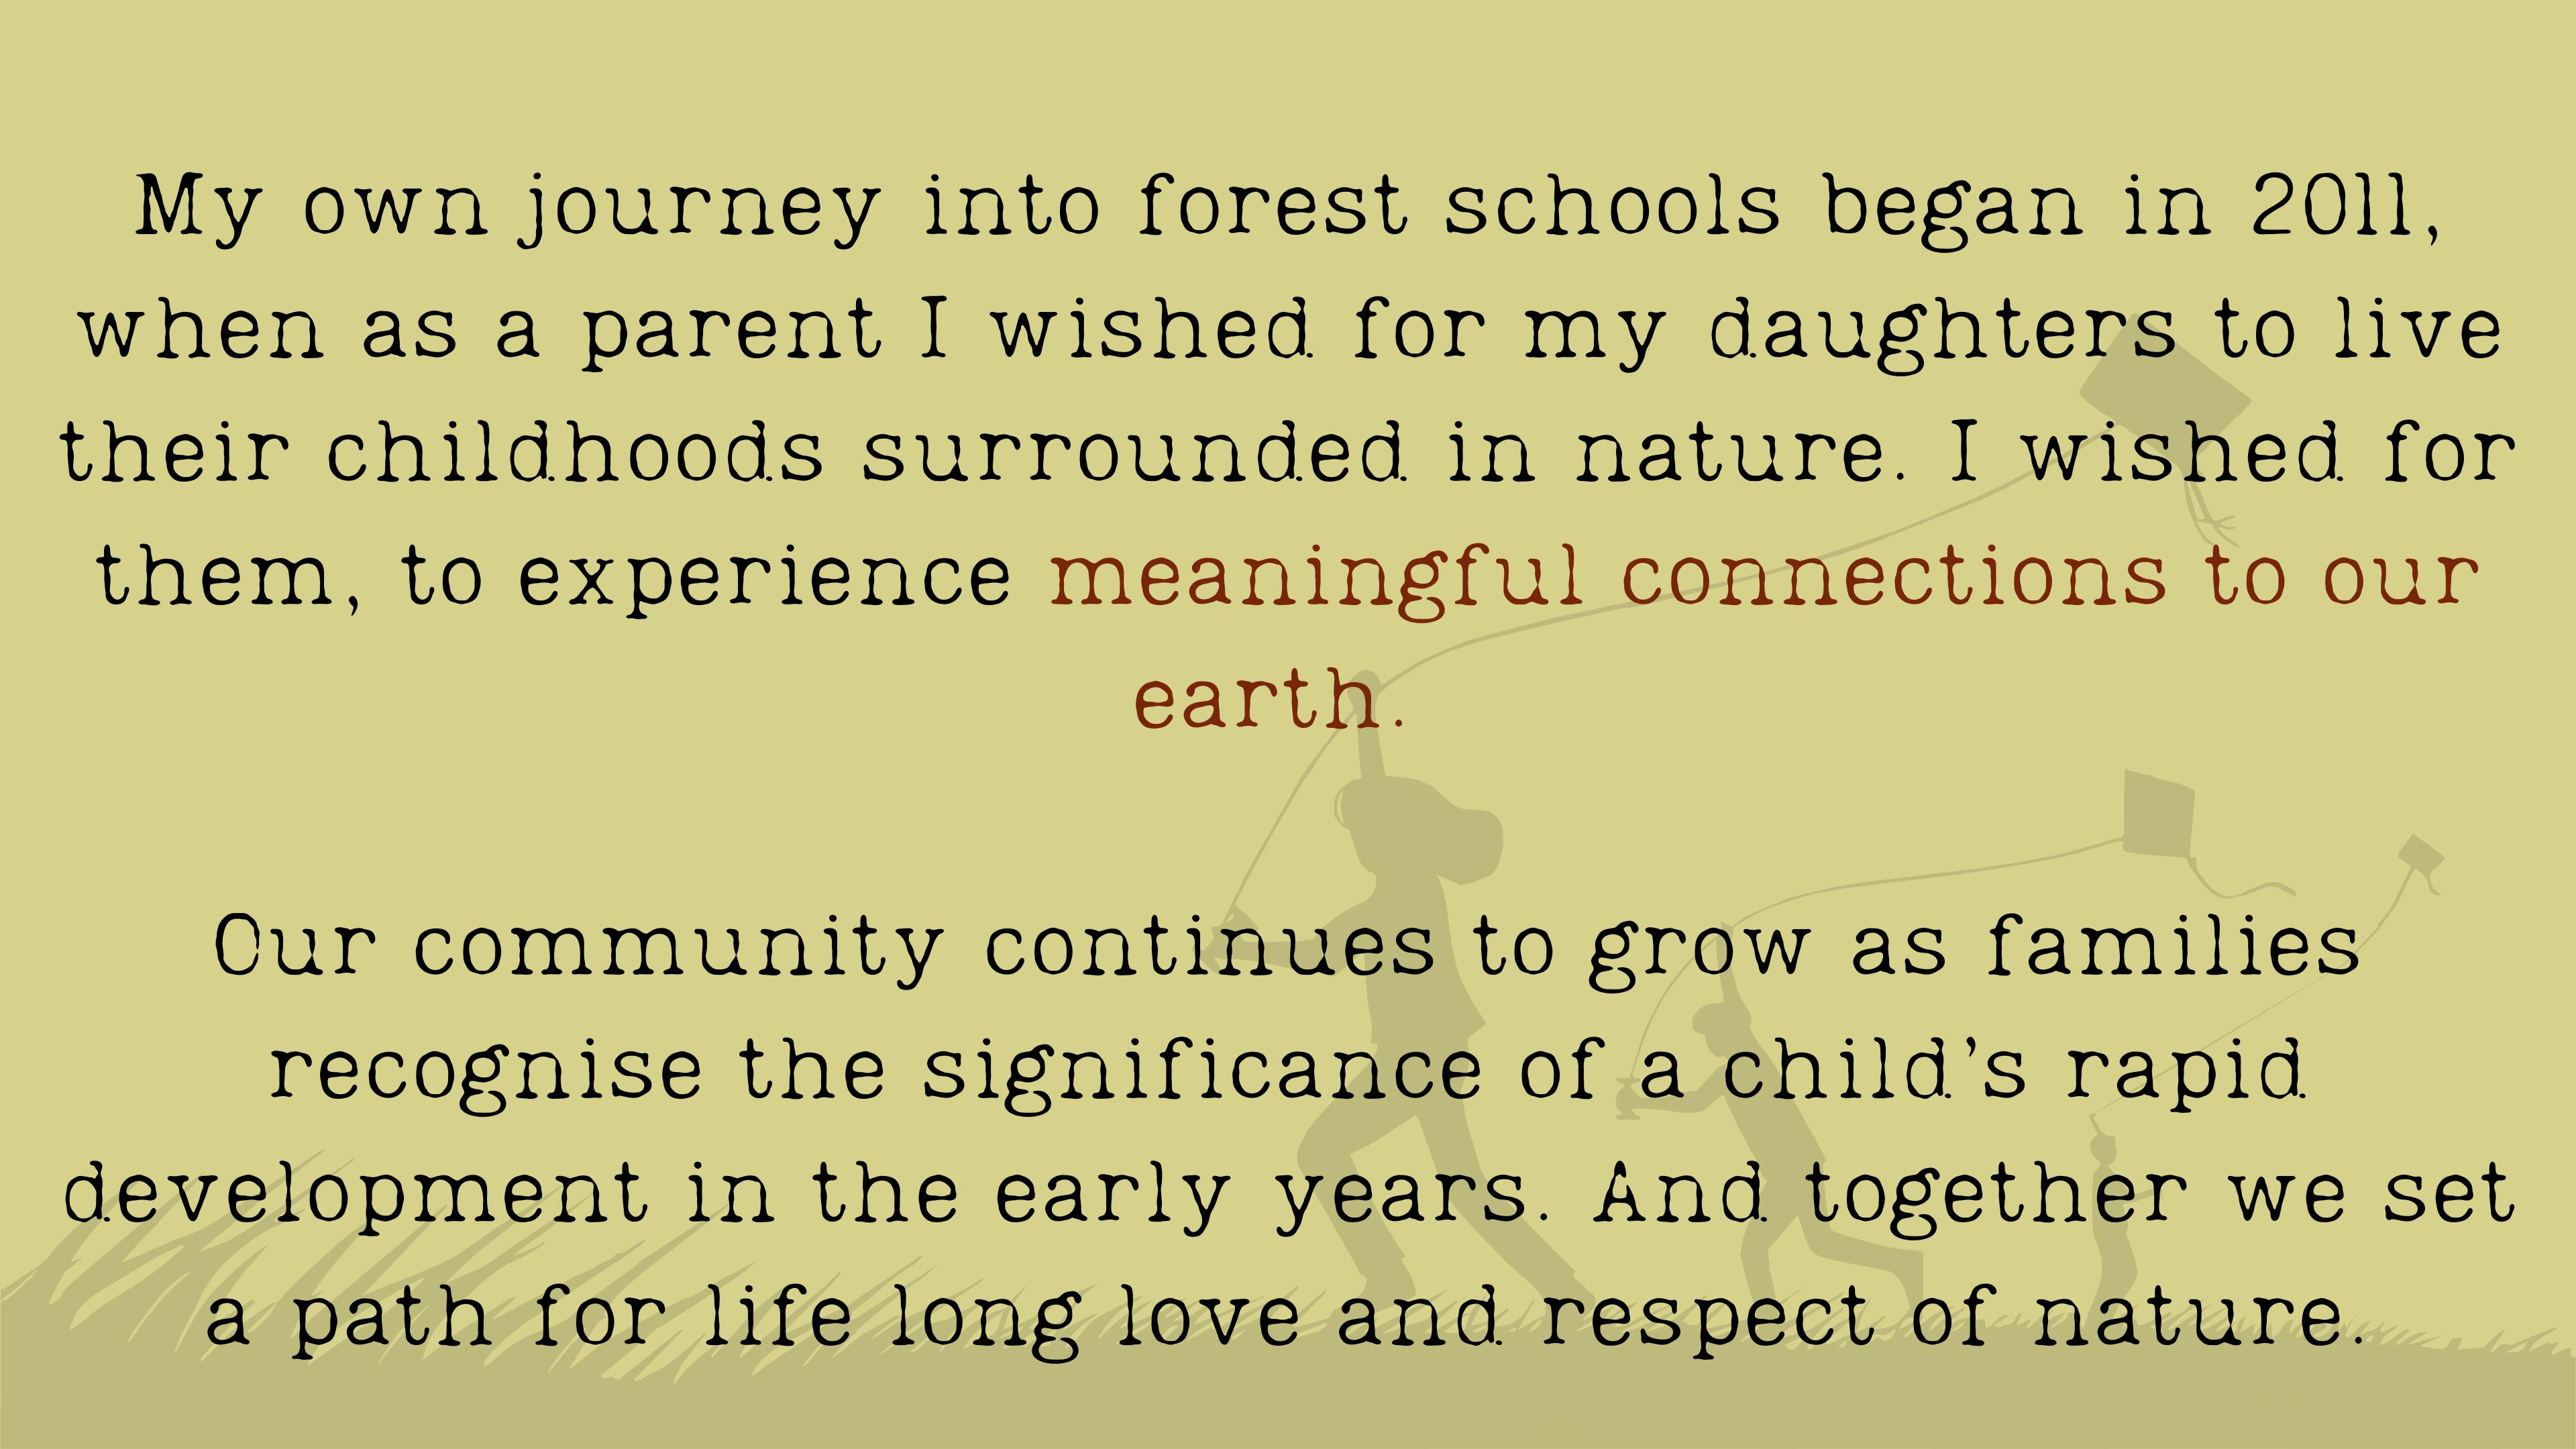

The team are always busy, tending to care routines and being led around the environment by children, but our teachings are slow and meaningful.

This presentation is designed to relax you into our curriculum.

With that in mind, grab a hot drink, put your feet up and immerse yourself into our culture.

I hope you fall in love with the setting as much as we have.

Victoria Furness, Founder

My own journey into forest schools began in 2011, when as a parent I wished for my daughters to live their childhoods surrounded in nature. I wished for them, to experience meaningful connections to our earth.

Our community continues to grow as families recognise the significance of a child's rapid development in the early years. And together we set a path for life long love and respect of nature.

With Thanks

This unique setting's creation was made possible by a team of dedicated Practitioners, Friends and Family. Who have given their time and belief and joined together in a pioneering vision for Early Years in Norfolk.

I offer thanks and gratitude to everyone (past and present) who has left their footprints on our land and contributed towards the design and evolution of our curriculum.
